Lipstick was so last week. The hot new beauty product is a (temporary) lip tattoo. 'Violent Lips' Glitterati Collection, launching at Sephora on Thursday, can glam up your smacker, stat. Taking a cue from sparkly nails, the line is full of five statement-making shades — red, pink, gold, silver and blue — that are designed to stay on and keep up with your rock-star lifestyle. Tested on supermodels, not animals. violentlips.com.

As you make plans to rock out Labor Day, do it with something unique. Skip gifting your host/hostess with a bottle of wine and opt for a sampler from TastingRoom.com. The site takes the guesswork out of gift-buying, kind of like iTunes for oenophiles. Six mini 50 ml samplers hold 1.7 ounces of red or white for quickie tries. Two varied suggestions: Wine for Dudes contains rad selections by celeb blogger Gary Vaynerchuk and the Signature Series is hand-picked by James Beard-winning sommelier Rajat Parr.

Patricia Bosworth goes inside a legendary actress' inner workings in "Jane Fonda: The Private Life of a Public Woman" (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, $30), out Tuesday. It was a 10-year-long project for the Vanity Fair editor, who also wrote bios of Diane Arbus and Marlon Brando. Bosworth first met Fonda in 1963 when they were at the Actors Studio, where the Oscar winner, 75, reconnected her mother Frances Brokaw's cousin when she
